FIRE FIEND BUSY IN MAUI BURG

Three fires during three succeeding nights were Wainuku's record last week. The first two blazes were minor affairs and were extinguished without difficulty, but the third threatened, for a time, to develop into a disastrous conflagration.

The first blaze broke out on Thursday evening in the Higashi hotel, and was caused by the overheating of a lamp. It was extinguished without difficulty. The second blaze, that of Friday evening, started in the office of the Maui Shimbun. For a few minutes it threatened to do considerable damage, but by prompt measures it was extinguished with but little loss.

On Saturday, the Fire Demon again endeavored to cause trouble. This blaze broke out in the Moritaki bathhouse. Fortunately the blaze was discovered before it had gained much headway and an alarm was turned in. The volunteer fire department responded in record time and, though the fire fighters found their hands full for a time, they managed to get the flames under control.

Three buildings were burned to the ground and others were seriously damaged. W. T. Robinson estimates his loss at $1000, Hota $1500, Higashi $450, Moritaki $400, Pomba and Ferreira $350, while many others sustained losses that would probably bring the loss up to about $5000.

Had there been any wind it is believed that all of Market street would have gone.

DRUNKEN CREW DRIVES CAPTAIN

on taking him bodily and throwing him into the water.

The cause of the trouble was booze, and the fact that the crew had invited strangers into the forecastle, visitors who demoralized the discipline of the sailors, who, as a general rule, are well behaved men and obey commands without question. The captain states that the men had no liquor aboard of their own, and that what was drunk was brought on board by the strangers.

Several of the strange sailors who collected outside the wharf gate after the trouble and almost had a fight among themselves while discussing the arrests, were heard to state that they had gone aboard to buy booze. It is said that one of the ship's petty officers, who had access to the lockers, opened them and that the crew had sold beer to the strangers. Being a dry Sunday in town, the news had gone out along the waterfront that beer could be obtained on the Flensburg, and they went on board to get it. Captain Sabr, however, denies this in toto.

The three sailors under arrest are William Ebert, Frank Yervien and Schurz.

AH FAMILY IN PILIKIA.

Last night was a bad night for the Ah family. Twenty-three of them were arrested for gambling, and carted off to the police station. There was Ah Mo, Ah Fat, Ah Chong, Ah Ching, Ah See, Ah Man, Ah Leong, Ah Hoi, Ah Ping, Ah Num, Ah Chan, Ah Sing, Ah Sam, Ah Chan, Ah Hoy, Ah Hung, Ah Chung, another Ah Leong, Ah Cheong, Ah Lum, Ah Hee, Ah Chee and another Ah Sam. Chung Hee, in some way or other, got mixed up with the Ah family and he also went to the police station to have his name booked opposite a gambling charge.
